COLLEGE PROFILE

Wallace Community College (WCC) is a public, educational, two-year institution now serving seven counties in southeast Alabama and the contiguous counties to southeast Alabama in Georgia and northwest Florida. WCC now encompasses the Wallace Campus in Dothan and the Sparks Campus in Eufaula. Additionally, the College offers classes at Fort Rucker, and it provides skills training at correctional facilities in Clayton and Clio, Alabama. The College offers unparalleled educational opportunities, including programs in academics, allied health and nursing, and career and technical fields.

Throughout the history of this institution, it has served the southeast Alabama community by providing quality instructional programs in both occupational and college-transfer programs. Four-year colleges and universities find Wallace graduates to be well prepared for higher level studies, as the College provides them with excellent preparation in English, history, math, science, psychology, and other transfer courses. The College provides educational opportunities not only to the residents of its service area but to anyone who has access to the Internet. The College now offers over 35 distance education courses that allow a great deal of flexibility in scheduling for faculty and students. Students can enroll in these courses and complete the course work at their convenience.

The College offers the service-area community a number of special programs through Adult Services, Community Services, and Corporate Services departments. These programs include courses in GED Preparation and English as a Second Language; non-credit and continuing education short courses, which provide cultural enrichment opportunities; and custom-designed, short-term training for local businesses and industries. The College is also a licensed Work Keys Service Center and is able to help its business and industry partners better match the requirements of their job openings to the skills of their job applicants.

HISTORY OF THE COLLEGE

In 1997, the Alabama State Board of Education and the Alabama Commission on Higher Education (ACHE) approved the proposed merger of Alabama Aviation and Technical College and George C. Wallace Community College. Following approval by these agencies, the College hosted a substantive change visit by the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) in September 1998. The Commission granted final approval of the consolidation of the two institutions in December 1998.

In March 1999, the merger process between Sparks State Technical College and George C. Wallace Community College was initiated. By October 1999, both the Alabama State Board of Education and ACHE had approved the Statement of Intent to Merge the two institutions as well as the administrative and programmatic phases of consolidation. A substantive change visit by the Commission on Colleges of SACS was scheduled for January 2000 and final SACS approval of the consolidation received in June 2000. Brief histories of the Wallace Campus, Aviation Campus, and Sparks Campus follow.

Wallace Campus

The George C. Wallace State Technical Trade School was established by the Alabama Regional Trade School Act of 1947. The first students, 13 in all, enrolled in the school's Sheet Metal program in January 1949. In 1955, the name of the institution was changed to George C. Wallace State Vocational Trade School. On May 3, 1963, the Alabama State Legislature decreed that a junior college be developed on the technical school site, and the institution became George C. Wallace State Technical Junior College. In response to a recommendation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, the technical school and junior college were united in 1969 to form South Alabama's first comprehensive community college. The Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools accredited George C. Wallace State Community College to award associate degrees and certificates in 1969, and the College's accreditation was reaffirmed in 1973, 1984, 1994, and 2002.

Sparks Campus

Sparks State Technical School, named for former Alabama Governor Chauncey Sparks, began operating on July 6, 1966, with an enrollment of 44 students. In 1968, the name was changed to Sparks State Technical Institute. With the offering of the associate in applied technology degree in 1974, the name became Sparks State Technical College, and the College was accredited by the Commission on Occupational Education Institutions (COEI) of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. Since that time, COEI has evolved into the Council on Occupational Education (COE), a national accrediting agency for technical institutions. The College was reaffirmed for COE accreditation in 1998. Sparks also provides correctional education programs at Easterling Correctional Facility in Clio, Alabama, and Ventress Correctional Facility in Clayton, Alabama.

WCC Library System

Learning Resources Center System. The Learning Resources Centers (LRC) System provides various resources for students, faculty, and staff members to support college and lifelong learning. LRC System services are provided at all locations including the two campuses, and two sites and online through the LRC Home Page. LRC facilities are located on the Wallace-Dothan Campus and the Eufaula-Sparks Campus.

The LRC System provides resources in various formats for faculty and students at all locations. Access to LRC System resources is available on the LRC Home Page through the on-line public access catalog-Voyager. In addition the Alabama Virtual Library (AVL), a state supported WEB site of essential periodical and information resources, is accessible on-line. The LRC System also provides access to almost 30,000 e-books through the NetLibrary database. The Voyager, NetLibrary, and AVL databases are also accessible for College patrons at home. The LRC System participates in interlibrary loan services and cooperative agreements with area libraries. In addition to the bound collections in the LRCs, basic reference sources, periodical subscriptions, various media, and electronic and on-line databases are provided for all students including distance learning.

The LRC System houses a collection of approximately 46,000 bound volumes, over 250 media resources, approximately 300 periodical subscriptions, and computers with database internet access. Special collections on the Wallace Campus include the Teacher's Collection, the Children's Book Collection, and an Alabama Collection.

LRC identification cards are required to checkout materials and may be obtained at the circulation desks. Also Alabama Virtual Library (AVL) cards, which provide home access to the AVL, are available for faculty, staff, and students. Students participate in an orientation program designed to assist them in using LRC resources to enhance learning and research opportunities. Computers, microfiche readers and printers, photocopiers, and viewing and listening centers are available for patron use.
